

Welcome Home

Welcome, welcome home
Step through that creaking door
Remember and forget
You've been here before
You've been here before

Stay, stay awhile
And open up your eyes
Look through a different lens
Find truth among the lies
Among the lies

A thousand locks, a thousand keys
From doubt to trust, from pain to ease
When past and present fall apart
Where we end is where we start

Welcome, welcome home
Downstairs to dirt and dust
Inside these hidden rooms
Our treasures turned to rust
They turned to rust

Like a blurry picture, like a faded voice
All confusing fragments
They seem to leave no choice
Blinded by darkness, eclipsed by the light
Reach out from the inside
There's nowhere left to hide

Welcome, welcome home
The shadows rise and fall
Signs to see and facts to face
The writing's on the wall
It's on the wall

A thousand dreams, a thousand fears
Forgotten scenes, forgotten tears
When past and present fall apart
Where we end is where we start
It's where we start

Home, welcome home
Home, welcome home
Welcome home, welcome home
Welcome home, welcome home